SABRINA VS HUNGER

Food and Travel award-winner and chef Sabrina Ghayour has teamed up with Unearthed deli to create a new antipasti mix. Olives, feta and artichokes flavoured with lemon and oregano make ideal drinks party fodder, plus 10p from every pack goes to Action Against Hunger. Two packs, £5. waitrose.com

PASTRY MAGIC

The filling may be fluffy and satisfying but it's the pastry that's made the Yorkshire Baker's individual quiches a permanent fixture in our summer picnic baskets. The secret behind its biscuit-like texture is that it's rolled, rested then rolled again. Skillful blind baking creates the golden colour. A quality, artisan product if ever we saw one. From £1.15. yorkshirebaker.co.uk

When it comes to ice cream, Italians do it better and Remeo Gelato's is made from natural ingredients. Sicilian pistachios and creamy milk from northern Italy are slow-churned until silken. Find it in Partridges's London stores. 500ml, £7.75.

GETTING JUICY

Numerous pretenders have tried to steal coconut water's crown but What A Melon watermelon water is the first serious contender. With its subtle sweetness and kitsch packaging, it may just be the perfect summer drink. 330ml, £2. planetorganic.com

Wasabi rocket combines hot pepper with a horseradish punch that adds attitude to any salad. 50g, £1. asda.com

OIL TAKE TWO

If you're constantly on the look out for an alternative to olive oil that brings a new dimension to vegetables with a higher smoke point, then your search is over. This Is Good's macadamia nut oil tastes rich and buttery but has eight times less saturated fat than coconut oil. Whisk with paprika and pour over hummus, use to roast formidably crispy sweet potato fries or bake into a tasty banana bread. 500ml, £15.99. thisisgoodoil.com

HEY HONEY

The Oxford Honey Company is a new indie company selling nectar from the Cotswolds. Drizzle it on yoghurt and enjoy an intense, woody flavour. 227g, £4.99. oxfordhoney.uk

THE NEW SNACKING

If you regularly fall victim to the 4pm slump, Coconut Jerky is going to come as welcome news. Chewy strips of Thai coconut with barbecue rub are addictive and the teriyaki flavour is perfect with ice-cold beer. Slip a pack in your pocket before leaving the house. This is one of the more unusual launches of the past few months and if you're a snacker, you'd be nuts not to give it a go. 12 individual packs, £34. mightybee.com

BLACK IS THE NEW WHITE

With the Isle of Wight Garlic Festival fast approaching (20-21 August), there has never been a better time to expand your bulb repertoire. Black garlic is gently heat-aged for up to eight weeks and is a favourite among chefs for its caramel-like flavour. Available whole or ready to go in peeled cloves, we can't make mushroom risotto without it. 50g, £4.75.
